NESPOS highlights

NESPOS - The NESPOS database is a continuously growing repository where archaeologists and paleoanthropologists can exchange their research results and share their ideas by a professional Wiki-based collaboration platform. The core data of the system will provide detailed information of the most important sites, their analytical results, archaeological findings, relevant publications and a variety of 3D scans of fossils, modern references and artefacts. NESPOS will significantly reduce the handling expenses and increase the accessibility of data for archaeological and anthropological research.

VisiCore Suite - The NESPOS 3D applications are conjoint with the Visual Simulation and Collaborative Rendering Engine. The VisiCore Suite provides an archaeological visualisation and annotation tool set collection that covers the scientific workflow from the topographics of an excavation campaign to the exploration and documentation of single finds and artefacts. The two main components are:

ArteCore - the Artefact Exploration and Collaboration Rendering Engine provides a toolset of real-time 2D and 3D visualisation routines for the examination of the remains' virtual high resolution-representations.

GeoCore - the Site Mapping and Rendering Engine provides a mapbased geo information system for presenting, exploring, and editing of archaeological excavation data in real-time 3D perspective.
